Trainees will benefit from weekly hour-long CBT supervision, as well as separate case and line management throughout the month. In addition, trainees are allocated a 'buddy' (a recently qualified CBT Therapist, who will be an extra source of support during the training year. Furthermore, NHS Barking & Dagenham Talking Therapies consider the preceptorship period post-qualification as equally important and steps are put into place to support newly qualified staff whilst they transition from training year (i.e. phased into role, continued close supervision, appropriate case allocations etc).

We acknowledge the tensions of working in a busy service with the need to meet KPIs and believe we strike a good balance of meeting the needs of our stakeholders whilst delivering a high standard of CBT (in line with NICE guidelines) for our patients. This includes being flexible with the number of sessions being offered, tailoring session length to support in session tasks, and using the latest research and guidance to deliver CBT. We encourage the use of taped sessions to support supervision and clinical development in-line with BABCP guidelines. The service actively promotes Continuing Professional Development (CPD); thus, a range of development opportunities will be available once successfully qualified.

The therapeutic modalities at high intensity include Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (CBT), Interpersonal Psychotherapy (IPT), Dynamic Interpersonal therapy (DIT), Eye Movement Desensitisation and Reprocessing therapy (EMDR), Counselling for Depression (CfD), Narrative Exposure Therapy (NET), Couples Therapy for Depression (CTfD), and Behavioural Couple Therapy (BCT).

The service offers out of hours appointments up to 8pm, so the post holder will be expected to work one evening per week. The post-holders will be given a fixed term high intensity training contract to work 37.5 hours, including 3 days in service and 2 days at university. The post is paid at band 6.

iCope Camden & Islington

Camden and Islington are exciting and diverse inner-city Boroughs. The Camden and Islington NHS Foundation Trust has been running IAPT services since 2008 and currently covers three services. We would recommend you looking at our website www.icope.nhs.uk to get a sense of the range of clinical services we offer. Currently all our staff are working both remotely using video and telephone consultations as well as face to face.

What sets us apart from some other IAPT services are our very strong links with primary care – each surgery has identified clinicians who are often based in the practices. We cultivate relationships with GP's and others to guide their referrals, our treatments and mutual service development. We also have formal partnership arrangements with voluntary sector counselling services, as well as connections to all other local mental health providers. We see our IAPT teams as a key part of the local primary care mental health provision within the boroughs.

We also have the ability to see people with somewhat more complex presentations (we call them IAPT plus). We believe this is both good for the local population and for our clinician development post-qualification.

We have leads and champions across many areas of service – older adults, BAME, physical health specialists, drug and alcohol, children and young people and a community trauma clinic – bridging the gap between the internationally renowned Traumatic Stress Clinic and the local iCope provision.

We have a strong track record of research, development and service innovation in primary care mental health and psychological interventions, facilitated by our close links with University College London.

Feedback from our staff is that our services pay a high level of attention to staff wellbeing with numerous initiatives and programs aimed at fostering team morale and engagement.

We are looking for bright and motivated people who are keen to train in CBT based interventions and who want to practice these in primary care and community locations in Camden or Islington. Following completion of the IAPT course, we support continuing professional and career development including training in other modalities such as couples therapy, interpersonal therapy, dynamic interpersonal therapy and EMDR.

We want to further increase the diversity of our staff and ability to speak other languages fluently is an advantage (we have a particular need for Turkish, Sylheti and Somali speakers).

We have 14 HI trainee (band 6) posts across the Camden and Islington services for this October intake. The posts are fixed term contracts for 12 months – but we are negotiating with our commissioners to have these made into permanent contracts with a ‘gateway’ of passing the course.

Westminster Talking Therapies

The CNWL Talking Therapies Westminster service is delivered by Central and North West London NHS Foundation Trust (CNWL), with specialist employment and vocational advice services provided by our partner organisation Jobs in Mind.

Westminster is an area of contrasting affluence and deprivation and the extent of health inequalities that we need to address is among the widest in the country. Westminster has approximately 230,000 residents. More than a million people come to work in or visit the borough every day. This diversity and transience bring with it hugely diverse health needs.

More than half of our population was born outside the UK, with more than 150 languages spoken in our schools alone. There are a significant number of refugees and asylum seekers in Westminster and many people have also migrated from the new European Union member states.

Westminster has a large Arabic-speaking population, and applications from Arabic-speaking candidates would be particularly welcome.

Trainees are recruited on a fixed-term basis for one year.
